Tom Carlsen has worked for Montana Fish, Wildlife and Parks for 27 years with most of that time spent as a management biologist in Townsend, Montana. Tom was on special assignment to head the effort to develop this conservation strategy and wrote much of Chapter 1 as well as compiling the entire document and completing initial edits.

Glenn Erickson first began working on bighorn sheep in 1970 as a graduate student at Montana State University studying the ecology of bighorn sheep in the Sun River area of Montana. Glenn retired from Montana Fish, Wildlife and Parks in 2007 with 34 years with the agency. As Wildlife Management Bureau Chief, Glenn was instrumental in developing Montana's bighorn sheep program to what it is today. Glenn wrote the historical sections in Chapter 1 of the conservation strategy.

Additionally, the following biologists for FWP produced the management plans for individual bighorn sheep populations found in Chapter 2.
